P200M lost in fire; Boracay in darkness

J. L. N. - vol. 8, Pt. 10, 1976

1990s, when 10-year-olds seldom used a computer, most boys made their first computer purchase with their parents. The typical child will wait to get the computer in the summer after middle school. The typical girl will wait to buy a computer in the summer after high school. The gender gap in computer ownership is the largest in the 10- to 14-year-old age group, with 20 percent of the girls and 30 percent of the boys in this age group owning a computer.

The American Society of Human Resources (ASHRAE) has announced that it will be publishing a new book, Human Resources Management: A Practical Guide to the Human Resources Function, in the near future. The book is a comprehensive guide to the human resources function, covering all aspects of the function, from recruitment and selection to training and development. The book is written by a leading expert in the field, and is a must-read for all human resources professionals.

OFWs in Iraq hiding from RP officials sent to track them

FILIPINOS working in Iraq are refusing to come home and some even hide from Philippine government officials trying to track them down because of the growing danger of attacks as the elections there approach, officials said Saturday.

Administrator Marianito Roque of the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration said only 49 Filipinos have so far taken advantage of an Owwa program under which they would be repatriated due to safety concerns.

There are around 6,000 Filipinos working in Iraq, many of whom went there despite a government ban imposed last year.

"The Filipinos even hide (from government officials) because they do not want to return," Roque said.

Kuwait-based labor attaché Angelo Jimenez was in Iraq to track down undocumented Filipino workers who had entered the country despite the ban, said Stella Banawis of the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration.

Manila had warned workers in Iraq that they were vulnerable to abduction and attacks ahead of the country's elections on Jan. 30 and should seek help from the Philippine Embassy.

The government cited the case of accountant Robert Tarongoy, who remains in the hands of Iraqi militants more than two months after he and an American were kidnapped in Iraq.

Despite the ban, numerous Filipinos continue to seek work in Iraq, many of them with civilian firms providing services for United States forces.

After the government penalized some local firms for sending workers to Iraq despite the ban, foreign employment firms resorted to recruiting the Filipinos in the countries neighboring Iraq, Banawis said.

"What the foreign employers do now is they are hiring the unemployed Filipino workers from Abu Dhabi, Kuwait, Turkey and in other neighboring countries... so the Filipinos now are not recruited from the Philippines," Banawis said.

The higher salaries for work in Iraq were still too much of a lure, she said.

The Philippines had asked countries bordering Iraq to help prevent Filipino nationals from entering that country.

Despite the threats, the government has said that ordering an evacuation of Filipinos from Iraq remains only a last, emergency measure. AFP

Amatong was not fired; revamp still up in the air

MALACAÑANG yesterday confirmed the resignation of Finance Secretary Juanita Amatong but gave no other details about a revamp in the Cabinet this year.

"Secretary Amatong has been a valuable team player who played a key role in the fiscal program, and there are others equally qualified in terms of patriotism and competence," said Press Secretary Ignacio Bunye.

Bunye's statement virtually confirmed reports circulating last week about a revamp in President Macapagal-Arroyo's economic team. Aside from Amatong, Energy Secretary Vince Perez is reportedly resigning from the Cabinet.

On Friday, Trade Secretary Cesar Purisima confirmed that he was moving over to the finance department vice Amatong. Malacañang is reportedly talking to Juan Santos, former chief of Nestlé Philippines, to take over from Purisima at the Department of Trade and Industry.

Socio-Economic Planning Secretary Romulo Neri said Amatong was neither fired nor asked to resign but was simply due for retirement.

"No, no, no. Secretary Amatong has done a very good job and she was an excellent finance secretary," said Neri in an interview over RMN radio.

Neri said there had been no talk about changes in the economic management team or the Cabinet in general during Malacañang meetings, including the last one held on Friday.

The President indicated last year that she would have two new faces in the economic team.

But when asked recently about the revamp, she was evasive, saying only that there was a continuous assessment of Cabinet members' performance and the new year was a good time to make the assessments. Juliet Labog-Javellana

5.4 quake hits South

A 5.4-magnitude earthquake struck the southern Philippines early Saturday, a seismology official said.

The quake struck at 1:54 a.m. and was centered about 184 km under the Celebes Sea, 115 km southeast of General Santos City in Mindanao.

"Earthquakes of this magnitude are common in the area, but most of the time they are not felt because they are very deep," said seismologist Joan Salcedo of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology.

Phivolcs reported no damage or aftershocks from the quake, caused by the movement of the local Sangihe Trench.

The Hong Kong Observatory, which monitors seismic activity in the region, measured the quake at 5.6 magnitude.

The Philippines is along the Pacific "Ring of Fire," where earthquakes and volcanic activity are common. A magnitude 7.7 earthquake in 1990 killed nearly 2,000 people on Luzon. AP

It is important to note that the results of the present study are based on a cross-sectional design. Therefore, the causal relationship between the variables cannot be established. Future research should use a longitudinal design to investigate the relationship between the variables over time.

These studies of the impact of the 1990s have been largely inconclusive, with some studies suggesting that the 1990s have had a positive impact on the economy, while others suggest that the 1990s have had a negative impact on the economy.

the authors' findings are consistent with the results of other studies. For example, a study by Smith et al. (2001) found that the use of a decision support system (DSS) in a medical diagnosis task led to improved performance and reduced errors. Similarly, a study by Jones et al. (2002) found that the use of a DSS in a financial analysis task led to improved performance and reduced errors. These findings suggest that the use of a DSS can be beneficial in a variety of tasks, including those that involve complex decision-making.

Cease fire

THE INQUIRER has been a vocal proponent of a ceasefire in the Mindanao conflict. We have repeatedly called for a halt to the violence and for a negotiated settlement. This is not only in the interest of the people of Mindanao, but also in the interest of the entire Philippines. A ceasefire would allow for a more peaceful and stable environment, which is essential for economic development and social progress.

Literary angst

By Joseph Gordon in a discussion

Superhero movies are a popular form of entertainment, but they are also a reflection of our society's fears and desires. In the Philippines, the popularity of superhero movies has grown significantly in recent years, with the release of the first Filipino superhero movie, 'The Superhero', in 2009.

The movie, which stars a young actor as the superhero, was a commercial success, and it was followed by several other superhero movies. This has led to a growing interest in the genre among Filipino audiences.

However, the popularity of superhero movies has also led to a growing concern among critics and scholars. They argue that the genre is a form of escapism, and that it does not reflect the realities of the Philippines.

In a discussion with a group of students, I asked them what they thought about the popularity of superhero movies. They gave me a variety of answers, but most of them agreed that the genre was a form of escapism.

One student said, 'I like superhero movies because they are exciting and they give me a sense of adventure. I can forget about my problems for a while and just enjoy the movie.'

Another student said, 'I think superhero movies are a reflection of our society's fears. We are afraid of the unknown, and we are afraid of the powerful. Superhero movies give us a way to deal with these fears.'

These students' responses show that superhero movies are a complex phenomenon. They are a form of entertainment, but they are also a reflection of our society's fears and desires. The popularity of superhero movies has also led to a growing concern among critics and scholars. They argue that the genre is a form of escapism, and that it does not reflect the realities of the Philippines.

In a discussion with a group of students, I asked them what they thought about the popularity of superhero movies. They gave me a variety of answers, but most of them agreed that the genre was a form of escapism.

One student said, 'I like superhero movies because they are exciting and they give me a sense of adventure. I can forget about my problems for a while and just enjoy the movie.'

Another student said, 'I think superhero movies are a reflection of our society's fears. We are afraid of the unknown, and we are afraid of the powerful. Superhero movies give us a way to deal with these fears.'

Thorns don't a cactus make

By Joseph S. Mendez

When people are asked to name the most common cactus in the Philippines, the answer is usually the cholla.

But the cholla is not a cactus. It is a shrub. The cholla is a member of the Fabaceae family, not the Cactaceae family.

LAURETO-FONTIVEROS NUPTIALS

Finding their love in the faith

By Peter Gomez

His first love was a high school girl. In 1970, in their senior year, Voltaire Laureto and Jean Fontiveros, both students at St. Francis High School, found each other. They were both young men, both from the same town, both from the same school, both from the same family. They were both young men, both from the same town, both from the same school, both from the same family. They were both young men, both from the same town, both from the same school, both from the same family.
